Instructors

Greg Webber

As the Academy's developer, Greg has strived to produce an environment that is not only results driven but also fun. By implementing the latest golf techniques and technology, including the V1 video teaching system, Greg has created an enjoyable learning environment for beginners to seasoned veterans. Greg's current student profile includes several of the area's best players including collegiate level athletes from University of Michigan, Michigan State University, and Grand Valley State University golf teams.

Tom Lindemann

As an instructor with Greg Webber Golf Academy at Hawk Hollow for the past four seasons, Tom has teaching experience of all skills levels. In 2010, Tom became a member of the PGA of America as a Class "A" golf professional and one of the Assistant Golf Professionals at Hawk Hollow/Eagle Eye Golf Properties. Tom also is the Assistant Golf Coach for the Lansing Catholic High School boy's golf.

Greg Beavers

Greg is a graduate of Ferris State University's PGM program. While working at Walt Disney World Golf as a Golf Instructor, Greg created a successful lesson program. At Disney, Greg was also tasked with teaching new instructors. He is the instructor for the Fitness for the Golf Swing exercise classes we offer here at Hawk Hollow. Greg has also started to work with the Wounded Warrior Foundation to help Veterans use golf as part of their rehabilitation from injuries they sustained.

Brian Bemis

An amputee for nearly 20 years, began playing golf shortly after losing his leg to cancer. He has competed in state and national amputee tournaments finishing in the top 10. Brian brings a unique perspective to the game and the ability to teach at all levels.

Clare DeBlaay

Clare DeBlaay started playing golf in high school. Clare coached girls Varsity golf for one year. She continued her pursuit in the golf industry by attending the Golf Academy of America in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina where she got her Associates in Golf Operations Management with a focus on instruction. Clare has been teaching with the Greg Webber Golf Academy at Hawk Hollow since 2010.

Mark Pawlowski:

Mark has several years of experience in competitive golf and teaching. He went on to compete at the collegiate level, a 4 year letter winner for Grand Valley State University men's golf team (2004-2008). Mark holds a bachelor's degree from Grand Valley State University in Business Administration and is currently working on becoming a PGA Member.
